Sheriff's Mounted Posse to celebrate 75th Nov. 6

By Alex Paul

Linn County Reporter

ALBANY — The Linn County Sheriff's Mounted Posse has searched for lost hunters and hikers, hosted riding events for special needs children and assisted Linn County sheriffs in many ways since 1947 and November 6 the public is invited to help celebrate the all-volunteer organization's 75th birthday.

The celebration will be held from 1-4 p.m. at the Linn County Fair & Expo Center, according to Posse Secretary Betty Allen.

Allen has been busy compiling photo collages of Posse events including photographs and numerous newspaper clippings.

There's even a photo of former President Ronald Reagan riding with the Posse in a parade when he was governor of California.

"We have about 25 active members and meet the first Wednesday of the month at 7 p.m. at the Sheriff's Office," Allen said. "We have ride nights from 6-9 p.m. on Wednesday at the fairgrounds." Allen said dues are $30 per year, unless you are a Lifetime Member, someone who has been a member for 25 years or is age 65 with 10 years membership, who have no dues.

"We are all volunteers who just want to give back to our communities," Allen said. "And, we love horses."

Allen said the Mounted Posse was formed in 1947 by Sheriff Hillis A. "Mike" Southard, the 33rd Linn County Sheriff.

Mounted Posse members are sworn deputies and are one of only two posses in the state authorized to carry firearms.

Allen said the Mounted Posse has evolved and provides services such as security at area events including the Linn County Fair, the Harrisburg Harvest Festival, Scio Lamb and Wool Festival, dog shows, gun shows and working with Linn County Search and Rescue to find

Commissioners support high-speed Internet project

ALBANY — Linn County residents — especially those who live in rural areas of the county — could benefit from faster Internet service, IT Director Steve Braaten told Commissioners Roger Nyquist and Sherrie Sprenger Tuesday morning.

Commissioner Will Tucker is on vacation.

Braaten asked the commissioners to approve an intergovernmental agreement with the Cascades West Council of Governments in conjunction with Lincoln and Benton counties to explore broadband options that would greatly increase Internet speeds for area residents.

Lane County had been another program partner, but has pulled out of the agreement.

Braaten said Linn County will pay $10,000, Benton County $16,000 and Lincoln County $15,800. The Council of Governments will contribute $18,200. The $60,000 will be used toward a grant application for $300,000.

Commissioner Nyquist said he was concerned because there has been talk about increasing faster Internet access for years, with little progress.

Braaten said the good news is that there is money available to support faster Internet services to rural areas and the installation of fiber optic data lines.

Braaten said Linn County is part of a statewide coalition encouraging rural residents to check their Internet's speed. Braaten said some communities in the county have had good participation, but others have seen only a couple residents respond.

Linn County IT Director Steve Braaten and Commissioner Sherrie Sprenger talk about high-speed Internet services and how to improve them.

The information will be used to develop overarching Internet systems. Linn County residents can participate by visiting <https://www.fasterinternetoregon.org/>.

Pine education project comes to life at Sunnyside Park

By Larry Mauter

For the Linn County Reporter

SWEET HOME — A Ponderosa pine education project at Sunnyside Park featuring local history was dedicated Saturday, Oct. 15.

Double-sided interpretive panels explain the history and rebound of the Willamette Valley Ponderosa pine — a separate race of pines from those growing in Eastern Oregon or in the south. Along with the covered signs, a grove of 60 young pines was planted in March 2021.

Also featured in the panels is the story of Robert H. Mealey, a forester who was part of a pioneering Sweet Home family. Mealey established the Linn County chapter of the Oregon Small Woodlands Association. Before he died he also established an investment fund to promote forestry education on small timberlands. Mealey's son Steve and many individuals who worked with Mealey in his efforts to revitalize the native pines attended the morning gathering.

Parks Director Brian Carroll represented

Linn County at the event. Carroll coordinated the county effort in securing a suitable site at the park for the LCSWA project. He was thanked for the efforts of county park staff.

About 40 people attended. Those who spoke recalled the efforts of Mealey — then an elderly man — climbing trees to gather seeds from the few native pines still in the area in the 1980s. Among the speakers were Rick Fletcher, a former OSU Extension Service adviser who worked extensively with Mealey.

LCSWA Vice-President Mike Barsotti explained the importance of pine as climate has warmed and also noted Mealey's role in establishing the Willamette Valley Ponderosa Pine Conservation Association in 1994. Content for the signs, the locally grown and milled pine support timbers and assembling the framed cover was furnished by LCSWA volunteers.

The LCSWA also served morning pastries and coffee. A box of 50 Ponderosa pine plugs was available for people to take home and plant a tree or two. The pine grove and signs are located adjacent to a parking lot along Quartzville Road just past the main entrance to Sunnyside Park.

LCSWA is a non-profit group of about 110 families. The group's annual seedling sale earns money to provide scholarships to Oregon State forestry students living in Linn County.

Linn County reviews its outreach during September wind storm

Linn County’s emergency managers had an unusual situation on their hands in early September.

A wind storm was headed toward the mid-valley according to all knowledgeable sources and the two power companies that provide electricity locally — Pacific Power and Consumers Power — planned to shut down services to portions of the county where trees most likely be blown over, perhaps igniting a major fire like that of Labor Day 2020.

And, the winds weren’t expected to arrive for about 48 hours, although the National Weather Service had issued a red flag warning on Wednesday, Sept. 7 with winds forecast for Friday afternoon or evening.

Warnings were issued for Sweet

Home to the north canyon.

Linn County began sending out warnings on the county’s emergency response system and local cities began implementing their own emergency plans.

Pacific Power contracted with private companies to set up emergency shelters in Sweet Home and Stayton and the county’s emergency response volunteers staffed a phone center.

The Sweet Home area was without power from Friday afternoon to Saturday afternoon.

October 6, county staff and a representative from Consumers Power talked about what went well and maybe not so well during a two-hour debriefing session at the Linn County Sheriff’s Office.

The process was led by Emergency Manager Ric Lentz, assisted by Emerson Marsh. Linn County Emergency Management Re-

Festival, dog shows, gun shows and working with Linn County Search and Rescue to find lost hikers, hunters and travelers.

Posse members have even been called upon to carry packs filled with young fish to stock hard to get at high lakes.

Allen said the Posse members supply their own horses, transportation, tack and firearms.

“The Sheriff provides our badges,” Allen said. “We are trained and certified according to standards set by the Oregon State Sheriff’s Association.”

Posse members are trained in First Aid, CPR, GPS navigation, weapons operations, communications and survival.

“All members must maintain a yearly certification for CPR, search and rescue and weapons.

“It’s a great honor to participate in multiple parades throughout the county,” Allen said. “The majority of Linn County is a vast wilderness. The Posse is called out day and night to execute searches, rescues, recoveries and fire evacuations.”

Sheriff Michelle Duncan greatly appreciates the Posse’s dedication to the county and her office in particular.

“The posse always reminds me of the old west shows I watched as a kid, where the sheriff would ‘call up their posse’ whenever they needed help, usually with finding a bad guy or protecting the county,” Sheriff Michelle Duncan said. “Although the posse’s role has changed some, they are still a valuable resource to ‘call up’ for search and rescue, parades and other events. It always amazes me how loyal and dedicated our posse members are to their community and the Sheriff’s Office.”

Duncan added, “Anyone who is familiar with horses knows how expensive they are to maintain and transport, especially with the fuel prices we are seeing today. The Linn County Sheriff’s Office Mounted Posse incur these costs as volunteers. They never complain and always show up. Our members are such wonderful and selfless people. I feel honored to get to know and ride with all of them.”

In 2015, the Posse held a celebration of its 70th year and former Sheriff Dave Burright told Albany Democrat-Herald reporter Jennifer Moody that when he told the Posse he wasn’t a “horse guy” there was almost a revolt on his hands. He told the Posse he would drive a Jeep in parades and that really touched off a firestorm.

“You would have thought I’d insulted everyone’s mother,” Burright said at the time.

Burright added that Posse members were adamant they weren’t going to see him in a Jeep in parade. They promised to provide him with a horse when needed and they always did.

All are invited to stop by the celebration on Nov. 6 to meet some of the Posse members and learn more about the group’s long history of service to Linn County.

Veterans Services director Dee Baley-Hyder tells Linn County Commissioners Roger Nyquist, Sherrie Sprenger and Will Tucker about the new federal program that will help veterans whose health has been damaged by chemicals such as Agent Orange or the toxic fires of the Gulf War.

Veterans Services now able to assist vets harmed by chemicals

ALBANY — Linn County Veterans Services will soon be able to assist veterans whose health has been negatively affected by Agent Orange and by chemicals released from large fire pits during the Gulf War, Veterans Services Officer Dee Baley-Hyder told the Board of Commissioners Tuesday morning.

Baley-Hyder said Congress recently passed the Promise to Address Comprehensive Toxics Act, what Baley-Hyder said may be the “largest health care and benefit expansion in Veteran Administration history.”

Baley-Hyder said the program will aid veterans who have been exposed to toxic chemicals as far back as the Vietnam war era.

The act adds 23 new presumptive conditions and could affect five million veterans or their survivors.

She said the program’s budget is $300 billion over 10 years.

Veterans Services has had 23 inquiries since September, Baley-Hyder said and the program doesn’t start until January.

Baley-Hyder also said the county has helped families recover $831,820 in benefits since July 1, compared to $363,328 for the same time period a year ago.

Veterans Services has also used all of the $11,000 grant from the Oregon

Department of Veterans Affairs to provide transportation for veterans who can’t drive and need transportation to medical services.

Linn County committed up to $20,000 to supplement the program and Baley-Hyder said she has used about $6,617 of that allotment.

“This has been very popular,” Baley-Hyder said. “We have trips booked through mid-October already.”

She said many of the veterans are receiving cancer treatment or have diabetes and are having wound care appointments.

The event is hosted by the Scio FFA.

Tristan Davis of the Linn County Parks staff helped dig one practice pit and three live pits that were evaluated by soil scientists from the USDA and NRCS.

Linn Council Soil Conservation District Administrator Debbie Paul said Scio was the host school and provided lunch, which was greatly appreciated.

Individual winners were:

First place: Novice Category- Taryn Cornell from Lebanon; Advanced Category – Katelyn Hacker from Lebanon.

Second place: Novice- Teagan Cornell from Lebanon; Advanced - Brooke Glaser from Central Linn.

Third place: Novice- Klair Graves from Lebanon; Advanced - Ava Glaser from Central Linn.

Team winners were:

First place: Advanced – Lebanon; Novice- Lebanon.

Second place: Advanced - Central Linn; Novice - Central Linn.

Third place: Advanced – Harrisburg; Novice- Mohawk.

“The site was perfect,” Paul said. “Kevin Seifert, Linn SWCD Watershed Tech, started the day providing explanations for the practice pit. The students then evaluated three additional pits. A big thank you to Linn County Parks for providing the site and digging the pits and to the USDA Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) soil scientists who spent a day judging the pits prior to the contest.”

Thank you Fair Board

Linn County Fair Board members were treated to homemade cookies Monday afternoon. The treats were a thank you from Scio High School junior Marissa Donner, 16. The Fair Board purchased her steer at the Linn County Youth Livestock Auction in July. Marissa is a member of the Lacombe Livestock 4-H Club and has used some of the proceeds from her livestock project to buy another steer, Larry, for next year's fair. Fair Board member Steve Mote had the honor of accepting on behalf of his fellow board members.

Linn County assists with free water donation

From our friends at the Albany Fire Department

September 28

One person's trash is another's treasure.

A trailer full of water is our kind of treasure. We got a call from Cheema Freightlines LLC which offered 45,000 pounds of water to us.

This is a gift to share with friends.

Water is essential to do our work. Yearly, the fire service must purchase water to use during respite on a fire. The extreme heat of structure fires and wildland fires means dehydration.

The following Linn and Benton County agencies benefitted: Monroe Fire, Sweet Home Fire, Scio Fire, Jefferson Fire, Harrisburg Fire, Tangent Fire, Philomath Fire, Lebanon Fire, Albany Fire, Halsey Fire, ODF Sweet Home, Brownsville Fire, Adair Fire, Albany Police and Corvallis Police.

A big thank you to Linn County Fair & Expo for your logistics and storage support. We couldn't have done it without you.

Thank you for making the Linn County Reporter happen.

No two days are alike, Ashley Scott of the Linn County District Attorney's Office told fellow Linn County employees Oct. 4 during the monthly Cookies & Conversation program sponsored by Commissioner Sherrie Sprenger. Scott is the public face of the office, welcoming people from her work area at the office entrance. Scott said she deals with a broad range of people — many of whom are not having their best day — as well as acting as the general information center for people needing to visit other offices in the courthouse. Scott said that despite dealing with some of the more serious life issues people can face day in and day out, the District Attorney's Office staff are like family, with many eating lunch together every day.

Linn County Extension and 4-H host popular open house

By Michele Webster

For the Linn County Reporter

TANGENT — The OSU Extension Service hosted an open house October 17 at our office in Tangent.

It was open to the public and was an educational time to meet with staff and learn about their programs. It was good to see more faces in the office and each faculty member enjoyed sharing their programs and activities with others that may not have been aware of them.

4-H staff, youth, and volunteers were available to answer questions for those interested in enrolling for the new 4-H year. Master Gardener faculty and volunteers responded to questions related to gardening, bugs and how to become a Master Gardener volunteer.

Our Family Community Health faculty offered a taste of healthy Food Hero (<https://foodhero.org/>) recipes including pumpkin cookies, creamy fruit salad and veggies with garbanzo bean dip. The blender bike was popular and provided a little exercise while blending a healthy smoothie.

Faculty member Tina Dodge uses this tool at community events to educate people about the importance of nutrition and physical activity. Those interested in fermenting were able to sample sauerkraut and kimchi provided by Jared Hibbard-Swanson, Food Security and Safety Program Manager.

The large conference room offered a wealth of information including “water sticks”, presented by Natural Resource staff that displayed annual rainfall in various regions of the area.

Forestry had tree samples and an educational display. Small Farming,

Commercial Horticulture, and Well Water faculty were popular responding to questions from the community.

Our new Fire Resiliency staff member Kayla Bordelon, discussed fire wise strategies with home owners. This was her first Open House and she was excited to meet with the public.

Parents, beware of teen prescription drug use

Courtesy Linn Together

ALBANY — According to surveys from the National Institute on Drug Abuse, 20 percent of teens say they have taken a prescription drug without having a prescription for it themselves, and 3 percent report abusing over the counter cough medicine to get high.

Teens report getting many of these medicines from home medicine cabinets and mistakenly believe that abusing them is "safer" than other drugs.

What types of medicines do teens abuse?

Rx Drugs: While prescription medicines benefit many when used appropriately, they are being increasingly misused and abused. The most commonly abused prescription medications are listed below, and all can be dangerous or deadly when abused:

- Opioids and pain relievers: examples include hydrocodone

(Vicodin®), oxycodone (OxyContin®)

- Barbiturates and benzodiazepines: examples include diazepam (Valium®), alprazolam (Xanax®)
- Stimulants: examples include dextroamphetamine (Dexedrine® or Adderall®), methylphenidate (Ritalin® or Concerta®)

OTC Cough/Cold Medicine: While millions of Americans safely rely on OTC cough medicine to temporarily relieve their cough, some teens intentionally take large amounts – sometimes more than 25 times the recommended dose of these medicines – to get high. This means some teens ingest multiple packages or bottles of OTC cough medicines that contain dextromethorphan (DXM).

- DXM is the active ingredient in most OTC cough medicines. Approved by the FDA in the 1950s, DXM is the most widely used cough suppressant ingredient in the United States.

- When taken in excessive amounts, DXM can cause serious side effects including rapid heartbeat, high blood pressure, memory problems, nausea and vomiting.
- More than 100 OTC medicines containing DXM are on the market today. These medicines come in the form of liquids, capsules, gels, lozenges, and tablets. Common DXM-containing medicines include many forms of Coricidin™, Delsym™, Dimetapp™, Mucinex DM™, Robitussin™, Triaminic™, Tylenol Cough & Cold™, Vicks DayQuil™/NyQuil™, Vicks Formula 44™ and more.

Help prevent medicine abuse:

TALK to your teen about prescription and OTC cough medicine abuse. Teens listen, even if they act like they don't. In fact, teens who learn about the risks of drugs from their parents are 50 percent less likely to use drugs.

SAFEGUARD your medicine cabinets. Take steps to protect your teens by safeguarding all the medicines you have in your home. Know what you have and how much, so you will know if anything is missing. Discard any medicines you no longer need.

Model T fans tour Quartzville Corridor fall foliage Oct. 14

The Madras Model "T" Bums Fall Foliage Tour of Quartzville Corridor Oct. 14.

The group stayed at Sunnyside County Park and drove up Quartzville Road about 40 miles on a "Fall Colors Tour".

They ate lunch on the edges of the road and a couple of the members in the group had to pull over to the shoulder of the road to let other vehicles pass by.

It was a great day for the Model "T" Bums

Thank you Randy Porter!

Randy Porter took some good-natured ribbing Friday afternoon as friends, family and co-workers celebrated his retirement after 24 years heading up the Linn County Fair & Expo Center. Linn County Commissioner Roger Nyquist praised Randy for his cool and calm demeanor, even when things were hectic. Nyquist said Porter took over at a time when there were numerous complaints about the way the Fair & Expo Center was operating. Porter quickly smoothed out those ruffles and has continued to do so for more than two decades. Others said Porter has an excellent sense of humor, is extremely honest and has integrity at all times. Kris Barnes will succeed Porter at the Fair & Expo helm. Porter received several gifts including a giant Hershey's candy bar and a pair of "chicken leg" socks from rodeo promoter and announcer Wayne White.

Remember, ballots due by 8 p.m. Nov. 8 at the Linn County Clerk's Office or drop boxes.
